Hiring rules to be reviewed

- NDP calls move a 'full-frontal attack on affirmative action'
- Visible minorities are only group with less representation in the federal government than in the general workforce

The Harper government says race and ethnicity need not apply when it comes to landing a job in the public service.

The Conservatives have ordered a review of government hiring practices, which currently give priority to qualified applicants from minority groups.

The Tories say favouring applicants from one group or another isn't fair.

But the union that represents government workers says only a fraction of jobs are restricted to certain groups. The Public Service Alliance of Canada's numbers show that of 5,000 jobs posted in 2008, only 91 were designated for one group.

Before affirmative hiring policies were brought in, visible minorities, including aboriginals, were underrepresented in the public service.

The federal government relies on data from Statistics Canada to determine how many people from each group are in the country's workforce. That data tells the government how well each group is represented within the federal bureaucracy.

Activist, 21, jailed in G20 case

A 21-year-old woman accused of causing thousands of dollars of damage during G20 protests will spend at least another week behind bars.

Kelly Rose Pflug-Back, of Norwood, Ont., waved her tattooed right arm to her family and friends in the Toronto courtroom Thursday, before being handcuffed and taken back into custody. She appeared in court wearing a grey sweater with long sleeves pushed up to her elbows, and her light-brown hair falling on her shoulders. At one point she was told to keep looking to the front as she was trying to send signals to other people in the courtroom.

Investigators allege she was an organizer of G20 violence that saw at least five police vehicles burned and storefront windows smashed June 26.

After a brief discussion between Crown attorney Michael Callaghan and defence lawyer Steve Gehl, the presiding justice of the peace decided Pflug-Back's next appearance would be Tuesday. At the courthouse, neither her lawyer nor family members offered to comment on her case.

At a news conference Wednesday, police alleged Pflug-Back was "single-handedly" responsible for thousands of dollars worth of damage.

Women claim cops made sexual threats

As of yet, no complaint actually filed Allegations come from two detained as part of G20 arrests

Some women arrested during the G20 summit are alleging police made sexual threats and used sexually charged language against them while they were in detention.

The allegations were made in two video testimonials played at a media conference Thursday organized by the Toronto Community Mobilization Network in Toronto. One of the women, Amy Miller, said she was detained for about 13 hours in a cell where she was threatened by police.

"I was told I was going to be raped," said Miller, an independent journalist reporting for the Toronto-based Alternative Media Centre during the June 26-27 summit.

The other woman, Lacy MacAuley, described a police officer sitting on her pelvic area and using "sexually charged" terms that she didn't want to repeat out loud.

"I was told that they were going to make sure that I was never going to want to act as a journalist again by making sure that I would be repeatedly raped while I'm in jail."
AMY MILLER

When contacted about the allegations Toronto police spokeswoman Meaghan Gray encouraged anybody who feels they have been mistreated by a police officer to file a complaint with the office of the independent review director.

Police are not responding to individual allegations, Gray said, adding there are several disciplinary actions that could be put in place if an officer is found guilty of a serious complaint.

Get ready for weekend traffic snarl-fest

Toronto drivers will have a chance to test their patience during this weekend's traffic forecast

Navigating the city could be a challenge again this weekend as several sporting events and street festivals roll into town, closing roads and disrupting traffic across the GTA.

With the 101st playing of the Canadian Open golf tournament underway at St. George's Golf and Country Club, a portion of Islington Avenue remains closed until July 30 between Eglinton Avenue W. and The Kingsway to accommodate the event.

Tournament organizers advise drivers to take Eglinton Avenue, Kipling venue, Royal York Road and The Kingsway as alternate routes around the closure. TTC buses are also being diverted in the area.

Meanwhile, in the east end, the 22nd annual Beaches International Jazz Festival will close Queen Street E. between Woodbine and Beech avenues between 6 p.m. and midnight Friday and Saturday, while upwards of 50 bands perform in the festival's Streetfest event.

Lake Shore Boulevard West will be shut down intermittently between Strachan Avenue and Ontario Drive until July 30 while the fence is removed.

Finally, if you're travelling on Jarvis Street to get to any of this weekend's events, don't forget that rolling closures will be in effect until late July while bike lanes are built.

Ride the shuttle

▶ If you plan to take public transit around the city, keep in mind TTC track repairs will close the Yonge-University-Spadina subway line between Lawrence West and Downsview stations for most of the weekend. The closing takes effect at the end of service Friday and service is expected to resume for Monday at 6 a.m. The TTC will start running shuttle buses between Lawrence West and Downsview stations at 6 a.m. Saturday.

Controversy over eco fees prompts report

Another Ontario watchdog is wading into the recent controversy over the province's eco fees.

Environmental Commissioner Gord Miller says he will issue a special report on the fees next Tuesday. His announcement comes one day after he blasted the government for slashing the guaranteed rate for small solar-panel projects by 27 per cent.

Ombudsman Andre Marin has also promised to look into complaints about the eco fees, which sparked widespread confusion when they were slapped on thousands of new products July 1.

Environment Minister John Gerretsen was forced to drop the fees this week amid complaints from both businesses and consumers.

But taxpayers are still on the hook for the program to the tune of up to $5 million.

Gerretsen said the government will pay to keep the program running over the next three months while it's being revamped.

2. The government gave Stewardship Ontario, the industry-led organization that oversees the program, the power to collect the fees that were first introduced in 2008 on a small number of items.
3. But there was no public warning that the levy would be slapped on a wider array of products, such as fire extinguishers and household cleaners, starting this month.

WiFi could hit public Ont. parks

The call of the loon could be drowned out by the click of the keyboard at some provincial parks in Ontario.

The agency that runs the parks is experimenting with wireless Internet service at Pinery Provincial Park on Lake Huron, and will consider adding the service in other parks if campers agree.

John Salo, the southwest zone manager for Ontario Parks, says the service was set up on a trial basis after some campers said they needed to stay connected even while getting away from it all.

Billy Bishop free to fly another day

Two federal court applications by Air Canada challenging the slot allocation at Billy Bishop Toronto City Airport have been dismissed, Porter Airlines Inc. said Thursday.

Porter Airlines said the court found that agreements between Porter and the Toronto Port Authority "were entirely appropriate and found no evidence of unfair treatment towards Air Canada."

"This decision reinforces that the allegations were an attempt to distract and derail Porter," said Robert Deluce, president and CEO of Porter Airlines.

MAN PULLED FROM POOL

Death a possible drowning

Paramedics were unable to revive a 40-year-old man after his lifeless body was pulled from a Pickering pool Thursday afternoon, police said.

"He was found in the pool, but we can't yet confirm the cause of death was drowning," said Sgt. Nancy van Rooy of the Durham Regional Police Service.

Van Rooy said police, fire crews and paramedics were called to the Vistula Drive home, in the West Shore Boulevard and Bayly Street area, after a neighbour spotted the man's body in the pool. The neighbour dragged the man from the water and tried to resuscitate him poolside while waiting for crews to arrive, she said. He was rushed to hospital but could not be revived.

Police have yet to identify the victim and the investigation into his death is ongoing.

Nine arrested after protesting cut to diet benefit for welfare recipients

A group of anti-poverty activists won bail Thursday after being held overnight following a brief occupation of Ontario Liberal party offices in downtown Toronto.

The six women and three men were led into the College Park courtroom handcuffed together, looking tired and rumpled but smiling at supporters and family.

Only about 50 supporters were able to fit into the courtroom; the remainder had to wait in the hallway.

All were charged with mischief to interfere with property and forcible entry and released on $1,000 surety with various conditions.

Out of "an abundance of caution," prosecutor Mike Callaghan included a condition that none could attend an unlawful protest.

Activists ignored signs preventing unauthorized people from entering the Liberal office, unfurled a banner and refused to leave, he said.

Government staff were put in a sort of "lockdown" in their offices out of fear violence could erupt, said Callaghan.

All are scheduled back in court Aug. 30.

▶ Just north of Mel Lastman Square lies one of Yonge Street's last green spaces — the tiny, unassuming Rose Garden.

Yonge's green space shrinks

It looks a little out of place in the urban jungle that surrounds it. The unassuming, manicured Rose Garden sits on the corner of Yonge Street and Park Home Avenue, offering those who live and work in the nearby dozen or so highrises a little green relief.

It is one of the few relatively new green spaces on this central Yonge Street corridor that can still be considered a park — not a half-hearted parkette or concrete community space. And over the past year, it has become a symbol of the struggle of green spaces to survive in the face of pressure to develop.

Last year, Menkes Developments Ltd. faced opposition from the city and local residents when it unveiled plans to build two 42-storey condo towers on top of the park. The final plan will save much of the park, but when the towers are finished, only a tiny swath of land will be visible from Yonge.

There are no official numbers showing how much green space on Yonge in the GTA has disappeared over the past few decades, partly because of the piecemeal way in which the city has been planned. Yet, city planners, environmentalists and politicians all acknowledge there is very little, if any, available green space left on the city's central corridor.

Friend of Jaffer, Guergis cleared of fraud charges

Toronto businessman Nazim Gillani faced accusations of fraud, conspiracy to commit indictable offence

A Toronto businessman at the centre of a scandal that saw Helena Guergis turfed from the Conservative caucus had criminal charges against him withdrawn Thursday.

Nazim Gillani was facing a fraud charge and a charge of conspiracy to commit an indictable offence in a matter unrelated to Guergis and her husband, former Conservative MP Rahim Jaffer.

While Gillani's legal woes would most likely have received little attention otherwise, a dinner with Jaffer last September

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Nazim Gillani

— followed by an over-enthusiastic email about access to the Prime Minister's Office — thrust the businessman into the media spotlight.

Guergis was pushed from cabinet, caucus and ultimately the Conservative nomination in her Ontario riding over allegations she had used her position to further the private business interests of Jaffer.

The resolution of Gillani's criminal woes came one day after the RCMP said it found no evidence of wrongdoing against Guergis or Jaffer.

StatsCan head's resignation has experts worried

Observers say ongoing census dispute could undermine other key research, such as Labour Force Survey

Some of the world's top statisticians were gathered in Geneva more than a year ago, listening intently as Statistics Canada officials offered tips on maintaining their independence.

StatsCan was clearly the world's gold standard.

"Faced with any significant attack on the agency's independence, the chief statistician's ultimate recourse is a public resignation," the officials said in a piece of prescient advice.

With agency boss Munir Sheikh having taken that ultimate recourse, experts, insiders and critics began sounding the alarm Thursday over the future of Statistics Canada.

"Its reputation is hanging by a thread at the hands of a bungling minister and a Conservative government that simply doesn't believe in fact-based decision making," Liberal House leader Ralph Goodale said.

Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney gently waded into the crisis Thursday, offering a pat on the back to the rattled agency.

"We're an intensive user of StatsCan data," Carney told reporters. "The agency has an excellent reputation, probably has been for a long time the pre-eminent statistical agency in the world ..."

But observers are also worried the next chief statistician will be seen as a Tory pawn, eroding public trust in the information produced by the agency.

Earlier in the week, a Conservative senator publicly questioned statistics that showed crime rates declining. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Opposition politicians say partisan politics, not sound policy, were behind the end of the mandatory census, and Munir Sheikh had no choice but to go.

U.S. OKs duty on softwood lumber

- Canada to start collecting Sept. 1
- Reps meet to talk economic co-operation

The United States has agreed to let Canada collect a 10 per cent duty imposed on softwood shipped south from four provinces.

International Trade Minister Peter Van Loan says Canada will start collecting the money Sept. 1.

Peter Van Loan and Ron Kirk, the United States trade representative, announced the change following talks Thursday.

The talks were on greater economic co-operation between the two countries.

Lumber shipments from Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan were hit with the tax last year after American complaints that they exported too much wood and breached the softwood lumber agreement. An international arbitration court in London upheld the complaint and imposed a $68-million penalty, to be collected in the form of a duty. THE CANADIAN PRESS

North Korean diplomat to visit Myanmar

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton warns Myanmar's junta against co-operating with N. Korea

North Korea's foreign minister will make a four-day trip to Myanmar as part of his current four-nation tour.

A member of the diplomatic community in Myanmar said Thursday that Pak Ui Chun will make his visit July 29 to Aug. 1, on the third leg of a tour that also includes Vietnam, Laos and Indonesia. The diplomat asked for anonymity because the news has not yet been officially announced.

The diplomat said Pak is scheduled to meet his counterpart Nyan Win during his stay.

Myanmar and North Korea are two of Asia's most authoritarian regimes, and both face sanctions by the West. They have had increasingly close ties in recent years, especially in military affairs, and there are fears that Pyongyang is supplying the army-led Southeast Asian regime with nuclear technology.

Pak's visit will be the first by a North Korean foreign minister since the two countries resumed diplomatic ties in April 2007.

Myanmar severed diplomatic relations with North Korea in 1983, following a fatal bombing attack during a visit by South Korea's then-President Chun Doo-hwan that killed 21 people, including four South Korean Cabinet ministers.

Three North Korean commandos involved in the bombing were detained — one blew himself up during his arrest, a second was hanged and a third died in prison in 2008.

UN: Kosovo independent

High court declares Balkan country's declaration of independence to be legal ◐ Serbia claims it will never recognize Kosovo as separate

Kosovo won a major victory on the world stage Thursday as the United Nations' highest court said its 2008 declaration of independence from Serbia was legal.

The non-binding opinion by the International Court of Justice sets the stage for Kosovo to renew its appeals for further international recognition. The tiny Balkan country has been recognized by 69 countries, including the United States and most European Union nations. It needs 100 for full statehood.

"Kosovo's historic victory should not be felt as loss in Belgrade," Kosovo Prime Minister Hashim Thaci said, calling the ruling "the best possible answer for the entire world." Kosovo's foreign minister, Skender Hyseni, said upon leaving the court, "My message to the government of Serbia is 'Come and talk to us.'"

Serbia quickly denounced the ruling and vowed it would never recognize Kosovo as separate.

The United States said the ruling was "a judgment we support," according to a statement by State Department spokesman P.J. Crowley.

Unchanged Arctic oil tests anger Inuit

Outraged Inuit groups are considering legal action against the federal government, saying it has broken promises to scale down plans for oil and gas exploration in a proposed marine protected area.

"The communities are angry, the Qikiqtani Inuit Association is angry," said Ookalik Eegeesiak, president of the association. "We're very concerned that we've been pushed under the carpet, basically ignored and just disrespected by the government of Canada."

People in High Arctic communities along the Northwest Passage were alarmed this spring to learn the Geological Survey of Canada planned to conduct seismic tests to assess oil and gas potential in both Lancaster and Jones Sound.

Months earlier, Environment Minister Jim Prentice had begun the process to turn Lancaster Sound — rich in wildlife, spectacular in beauty, central in Inuit culture — into a marine conservation area. The plans to look for oil and gas prompted northerners to wonder about Ottawa's real intent.

Black's first day of freedom

Former media baron remains low-key after his first night out of jail

Conrad Black woke up a free man Thursday after a judge granted him bail, enabling him to trade a prison cell for a night at a posh Palm Beach mansion.

Black arrived at the mansion Wednesday in a black SUV similar to one that had been parked outside the prison in Coleman, Fla., where he had spent more than two years as an inmate.

His whereabouts Thursday were unclear.

Stern warning

- Black will have to appear before Judge Amy St. Eve in Chicago Friday. He will hear from St. Eve about the conditions of his bail and the consequences of disobeying them.

A man who emerged from the mansion in the morning said Black had spent the night there but had already left. His account could not be verified.

Black's wife, Barbara Amiel, however, was seen driving away from the mansion around noon Thursday in a dark-coloured Lincoln automobile. No one else was in the car.

The mansion is reportedly where Black's wife had been staying while the former media baron was behind bars.

Lloyd's brother attended the hearing Thursday and said he intends to be back for future dates.

"I think it's something I personally, for myself, have to do," Andy Lloyd, 30, said outside court. "Hopefully everything works out for the best as far as the justice system, but I don't know really if that's going to be closure or not," he said.

Mystery on the plain

Intriguing new structure found near England's Stonehenge What went on there? Scientists baffled.

Scientists scouring the area around Stonehenge have uncovered a second circular structure only a few hundred metres from the world-famous monument on England's Salisbury Plain.

Like Stonehenge itself, the structure's purpose and ceremonies that went on there are a mystery.

But it's one of an expanding number of discoveries being made around the site — something experts say shows Stonehenge was once much more than just a cluster of sandstone blocks.

"In its day Stonehenge was at the centre of the largest ceremonial centre in Europe," said archaeologist Tim Darvill.

The new discovery, he said, "really shows how much there is still to learn and how extensive the site really was."

The foundations — a ring of holes surrounding a cluster of deep pits — are facing Stonehenge from about 900 metres away, according to a ground mapping project led by University of Birmingham archaeology Prof. Vince Gaffney.

The pits, long since filled with earth, were probably dug to secure a circle of wooden poles, Gaffney said.

"It's a timber equivalent to Stonehenge," he told the BBC, adding it's the "first major ceremonial monument" found in the area in 50 years.

The new find joins a growing complex of tombs and mysterious Neolithic structures found across the area.

Home, sweet home no longer a shack?

South Africa's government is launching an ambitious plan to build 400,000 homes for people living in shacks on the outskirts of the nation's cities.

President Jacob Zuma said Thursday the state aims to provide the new homes with "essential services" by 2014, paid for out of state budgets.

"This will provide households with security of tenure as well as access to essential services in sites which are close to economic and other social amenities," Zuma said.

South Africa's successful World Cup hosting has led the government to intensify building, including power stations, pipelines, rail and bus projects, Zuma added.

Two prisoners die in fiery fight at Quebec jail

Mattress and clothing set ablaze as anger erupts in prison wing It's tragic and deplorable, says official

A fiery prison altercation left two inmates dead and six others injured at a provincial jail in suburban Quebec City.

The fracas involving 14 inmates erupted in one of the wings of the Orsainville prison about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, said Quebec's public security department.

Some of the prisoners set fire to a mattress and clothing during the scuffle.

The two inmates' bodies were found once the blaze was extinguished.

The inmates involved ranged in age between 20 and 50 — and they were all awaiting the completion of their various trials.

Autopsies will be conducted to determine the cause of their deaths.

What prompted the disturbance remains a mystery for now.

"It was an altercation involving somebody who was incarcerated, but we don't know what set it off," said Johanne Beausoleil of the public security department.

"It's obviously a tragic and deplorable event."

Beausoleil said prison guards tried to evacuate the wing, but eight prisoners refused to leave.

That's when the fire broke out.

"The fire had to be controlled as well," she said.

Beausoleil said overpopulation was not a cause of the fracas: The institution can hold more than 700 offenders and it contained only 631 prisoners Wednesday.

Orsainville was also the scene of a riot in February 2008, apparently triggered by a smoking ban.

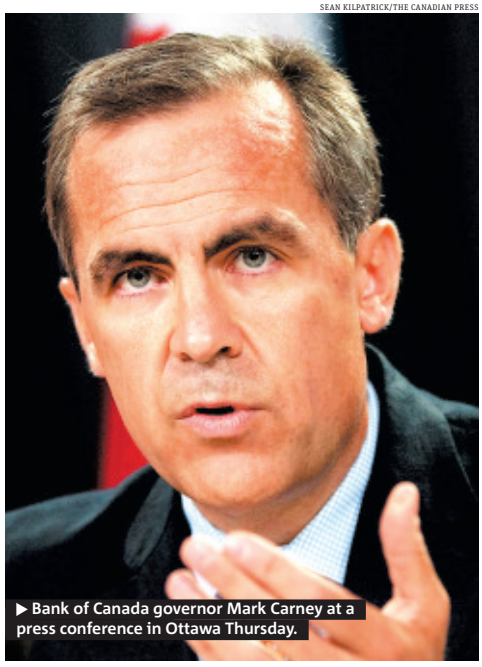
Economy starting to falter: BoC report

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS



▶ Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney at a press conference in Ottawa Thursday.

- Employment up, but not incomes
- Predicts dollar will stay lower

Canada's economy is slowing much faster than previously expected, the Bank of Canada said yesterday in a bleak outlook that stresses mounting risks from Europe's debt crisis and a possible global stall.

Still, the bank said it does not expect to backtrack on its current trend to higher short-term interest rates. Bank of Canada's key rate has risen half a point since early June, including a quarter-point hike Tuesday.

The 28-page document makes clear that the Bank of Canada's governing council sees conditions in Canada and around the world deteriorating since its last assessment in April, and risk factors intensifying.

Canada's economy is already in the midst of a sharp pullback compared with the strong 6.1 per cent acceleration that occurred in the first three months of 2010, the bank says.

"Private demand around the world may be insufficient to sustain the recovery."
BANK OF CANADA REPORT

It estimates the just-ended second-quarter growth will come in at three per cent, almost a full percentage point below what the April forecast.

The report points to risks stemming from the European crisis, lower growth in China, high unemployment, loss of confidence, weak consumer demand and businesses too fearful to invest in the future. THE CANADIAN PRESS

THIS BRIDGE GOES NOWHERE

Other people's money

DAVID DESCÔTEAUX

A bridge isn't a "stimulus." It's a bridge.

I am driving my car. I turn right … congestion. Road repairs — one lane closed. No problem, I know a detour. Turning left ... jammed again. Bridge repair — two lanes closed. Now I'm starting to get cranky. Then a road sign makes it all better: The $12 million to fix the bridge will "stimulate the economy." And create 32.6 jobs!

Only problem: It's not true.

Whether you're driving in Montreal, Toronto or Vancouver, it's the same. Construction sites ravage the streets. This year alone, governments will spend almost $10 billion in infrastructure stimulus funding — about $550 per Canadian taxpayer. To "save" us from an economic crisis that, according to most "experts," is over (or hasn't begun yet here).

True, in parts of the country bridges are cracking and roads are filled with potholes. When we need to wear hockey helmets and elbow pads to drive to work, these collective investments make sense. But stop saying it will boost the economy.

How could these projects absorb the coming masses of unemployed? A former McDonald's manager cannot turn into a cement layer overnight. What if most of the laid-off workers come from the service sector? Will a former accountant go level the roadbed of the QEW? I hope not.

"If a bridge costs a million dollars, you and I have a million less to spend."

Also, there is no such thing as a free lunch. If a bridge costs a million dollars, you and I have a million less to spend (for buying a bike or a car, eating at a restaurant, etc.). Every job created by the new bridge destroys another job elsewhere in the economy.

Truth is: Instead of regularly investing in bridge and road maintenance, our governments chose over the years to spend the money elsewhere. After all, giving a juicy subsidy to a noisy interest group buys you more votes than paving a section of road in Nowheresville.

The result of this neglect: This summer, the country will be overrun by construction sites.

In addition to angering motorists, this supposed "stimulus plan" runs the risk of overheating the construction industry. Contractors are already busy. If we triple the number of project tenders, contractors may well decide to raise their prices when bidding for them. Will taxpayers get enough bang for their "stimulus" bucks?

We all want nice roads and bridges. But stop taking people for idiots. A bridge is not a recovery plan. It's a bridge.

5 MINUTES WITH: MARK MCEWAN

Mark McEwan, considered one of Canada's top chefs, counts such culinary ventures under his apron as North 44, ONE, Bymark, as well as an eponymous grocery store.

You've said in previous interviews that business smarts are just as important in your world as culinary skill. What advice do you have for those who may be long on talent in the kitchen, but short on savvy with numbers?
My business is a business like any: You'd better know the financial side of it or you'll never succeed. There are no phenomena that happen in my business just by themselves. You have to be practised in how you manage your day.

And on that note, what are some of the things that can make or break an aspiring chef?
Inability to handle the stress, the hours, the physical nature of the job … One of the things about being a chef is that you have to be able to do service. Service is very, very stressful. So it's not just about managing the business, it's about being a very good cook. You have to be very good at both sides of it to be successful at it.

You have some of the top restaurants in the city, a TV show, a grocery store, (McEwan), books … what's left?
I have a new restaurant opening at the end of August right across from my grocery store. It's called Fabbrica. Old school Italian food, including Napolitana-style pizza. I'll also do more stores and I'll be doing Top Chef Canada. We start shooting in the middle of August and it'll come out next spring.

So on Top Chef, would you say you're going to be more of a Gordon Ramsey or a Jamie Oliver type?
I'm somewhere just right of centre (laughs). I'm not much of a hysterical screamer. I usually just fire people if they're really incompetent.

After a long day in the kitchen do you ever just order a pizza?
All the time. My wife and I go to Terroni for pizza. A good pizza is great. That's why I'm doing Fabbrica.

No, I mean do you ever call for delivery?
Sure. Pizza Pizza is terrible pizza, but Pizza Nova has the best delivery pizza in the city, as far as a mass-produced product.

TORONTO. With $2,500 I would probably return a portion to my mom, who loaned us some money recently, and treat my husband and I to a week at a cottage or mini getaway.

Even a night out in Toronto with dinner and accommodations would be great.

Curious about Mark McEwan's grocery store after reading 5 Minutes With?

There are two words you need to know: Curry bar. It's the antithesis of your typical, greasy fast food lunch on the go. The rotating selection of Indian-inspired dishes would appear more comfortably suited to a rajah's table, but it's all yours for the consuming (in an environmentally friendly take-out container at that.) A particular highlight is the curry beef: Moist, rich, and savoury, it eschews the oiliness that can often accompany similar dishes. So pile it on high: Your basmati rice will thank you.

Schmuck in middle of smart comedy

Once Dinner for Schmucks director Jay Roach showed him the funny, it was a 'no-brainer' for Rudd Film title's not controversial, Jewish star says

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

For Paul Rudd, the decision to star in Jay Roach's new comedy, Dinner for Schmucks, was an easy one.

"I thought the script was really funny," he says. "That was it. It was kind of a no-brainer."

Of course Rudd, who's built an impressive resume of smart comedies including Anchorman and Role Models, was just as enamoured with the man behind the camera as he was with the screenplay.

"One of the things I think is amazing about Jay is how versatile he is," Rudd says of Roach. "He's done so many funny movies and then he goes and does a movie like Recount, where he's just such a smart guy. He has all of this talent, yet he's the most self-effacing guy."

In Dinner for Schmucks, Rudd stars as Tim, an overextended finance worker looking to impress his boss (Bruce Greenwood). He's given a chance to do just that when he's invited to an exclusive dinner where the attendees bring the biggest idiot they can find. The schmuck with the most hilarious talent wins a trophy. Despite his moral hesitations, Tim can't help but think it's fate when he runs into Barry, a naïve simpleton played by Steve Carell — another aspect that made the film an easy choice for Rudd.

Some might have hesitations about a movie with "schmuck" in the title, but Rudd, who is Jewish, brushes off any controversy.

"My grandfather used to call me a schmuck all the time," he says. "You know, it's like the word 'putz.' When I was growing up, I thought the word 'putz' was a really funny word — 'Don't be a putz!' So I always thought a putz was just an idiot, but then my dad told me, 'A putz is a penis.' What's up with so many words that mean penis in Yiddish?"

Carell and his inner idiot

For Carell, getting in touch with his inner Schmuck was a blast. Used to playing bumbling on The Office, Carell even admits that he has some skills that could get him an invite to a real-life dinner for schmucks. "I play the baritone horn, so that could qualify me to get invited to one of these dinners," he says. "The baritone horn is like a mini tuba, and it's probably the least sexy instrument you could choose."

School's out for Zac

High School Musical stars graduates to more mature roles Handles emotions, sailing in Charlie St. Cloud

Zac Efron stars in Charlie St. Cloud.

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

This could be upsetting news for some of his most avid fans but Zac Efron may be growing too old for his High School Musical ways.

"I love the audience that I've had thus far," admitted Efron recently in Los Angeles to promote his new fantasy drama, Charlie St. Cloud.

"I feel like I can really talk with this generation and understand them and I want to make movies for them. But I think the best way to do that is not to do the same thing over and over again but to evolve with the audience."

For the young actor, that meant taking on the title role of Charlie — a young sailing prodigy who struggles to get past the accidental death of his younger brother. Based on a popular novel, the 22-year-old star admits it's definitely a move in a more serious direction.

"Everyone at some point in their life experiences loss," said Efron. "This is a story that comes from love and how even when someone moves on, a piece of them will always be alive inside your heart so it relates to everybody."

"(I want to) have some life experience, make some films about those things and hopefully by the time the audience catches up ... they realize life isn't always like High School Musical."
ZAC EFRON

While playing a character that grieves in a unique way (he routinely meets the spirit of his sibling to toss a baseball around) may have proven emotionally challenging for the actor, Efron also had to learn to become an expert mariner — a pursuit that sounds much more gratifying.

"I never sailed before so I got the crash course," said Efron. "It was incredibly fun. Everyday we had a regimen — wake up, sail for six hours, come in sunburned and then sleep for the rest of the day."

Whoever claimed high school was the best years of one's life clearly wasn't living the life of Zac Efron.

Dog days of director

Brad Peyton knows the rules. "For directors, there's a list of things you're not supposed to do: kids and animals," he says. "The list goes on: robots, explosions, lots of visual effects."

Peyton's first feature film, Cats and Dogs: The Revenge of Kitty Galore, the cast was almost entirely of the furry, four-legged variety and the spy-games plot called for plenty of robots, explosions and effects. And he's completely aware of how bold of a choice that was.

"It just felt like we pretty much put everything into the first movie," he admits.

Peyton quickly learned that when dealing with canine actors, he'd have to do a lot of the heavy lifting himself. "A dog walks into a room, doesn't know what an eye line is, doesn't have a clue what it's motivation is besides getting his food and hearing a squeaky toy," he says.

Luckily he also had a star-studded voice cast — and at least one live, upright actor on set — to help him feel human again. "When we got to Chris O'Donnell, I was like, 'Thank god. Four days of Chris O'Donnell, this is like such a reprieve,'" Peyton says with a laugh. "It was refreshing."

Cold spies, hot thriller

Salt
Genre: Action/Thriller
Director: Phillip Noyce
Stars: Angelina Jolie

Phillip Noyce's fast, gritty spy thriller Salt, starring Angelina Jolie as a CIA analyst suspected of being a Russian sleeper agent, could be flippantly called "Lady Bourne," and that wouldn't necessarily be an insult.

It shares the better aspects of the Matt Damon franchise's "spy out in the cold" DNA. At the same time, Salt feels retro — in the best possible sense of the word — thanks in large part to something audiences haven't seen in a while: Russian bad guys.

With a tight, well-plotted script, some fun twists and fantastic stunts and action sequences, it would easily be smart summer fun already. What elevates the movie, though, is the cast.

Jolie fits perfectly into the title role, harnessing a mix of toughness and vulnerability that's served her well in her dramatic work as well as her more gunplay-heavy roles.

Having the talented Liev Schreiber and Chiwetel Ejiofor to play off of as her CIA supervisor and a counterintelligence investigator, respectively, doesn't hurt either.

A bonus: Eagle-eyed viewers might recognize a certain free daily newspaper that Jolie puts to good use on a New York subway train. NED ERHBAR

No image in Josh Fox's Gasland resonates like that of a homeowner lighting a stream of tap water on fire. It's a chilling tableaux of how the decisions made by corporate entities (in this case American energy companies trolling indiscriminately for for natural gas) infiltrate and endanger our private space. This well-made, smartly pitched film mixes first-person urgency with persuasive statistical evidence towards an indictment of the U.S.' drill-baby-drill ethos.

Grease Sing-A-Long
Genre: Musical
Director: Randal Kleiser
Stars: John Travolta, Olivia Newton John

If your life feels incomplete without seeing John Travolta gyrate his hips on the big screen then you're in luck. Grease is briefly returning to theatres, only this time with amusing CGI onscreen lyrics encouraging the audience to sing. The film itself remains the same.

It's still the only musical to charmingly deal with teen sex, working class failure, eating disorders, auto theft, and teenage pregnancy. Some moments feel dated and the ending is as abrupt as ever, but the songs are undeniably catchy and now you can belt them out in a theatre.

You should know if the Grease Sing-A-Long is for you based on the title. It's either nostalgic nirvana or a perplexing relic.

Ramona and Beezus
Genre: Drama
Director: Elizabeth Allen
Stars: Joey King

Beverly Cleary's childrens books about Ramona Quimby have been bedtime reading staples since the 1950s, yet oddly never made it to the big screen until now.

At times it's clear the story is from another era as characters display values, language, and behaviour that feel decades removed from contemporary reality.

Director Elizabeth Allen clearly wanted to retain the spirit of the books, but ends up with something out of date that feels closer to a sitcom than reality.

Fortunately, it's not a complete disaster. The talented child actors (particularly lead Joey King) are perfectly cast and the movie deals with issues like unemployment in an uncommonly realistic manner for a children's movie.

THE TROUBLE WITH WEIRD SISTERS

The old song lyric "Two different faces, but in tight places, we think and we act as one" pretty much sums up the bond often shared by sisters.

No matter how close the connection — or how many sterling silver "sisters are a forever friend" catch bangle message bracelets are exchanged — there is bound to be some tension between sibs. Even the tagline for this weekend's kid comedy Ramona and Beezus — "A little sister goes a long way"— suggests some good-natured conflict between the girls. Here's a look at other kinds of cinematic sibling rivalry.

Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?

If sisters are blossoms in the garden of life as one poet said, then Jane Hudson must be a poison ivy plant. Played to great creepy effect by Bette Davis — wearing an inch of thick pasty make-up — Jane was ranked No. 44 on the AFI's 50 Best Villains list. As she descends into madness, she keeps her sister Blanche (Joan Crawford) captive and even tries to make her eat her pet parakeet. The movie is great campy fun but the behind-the-scenes stories are almost as psychotic as anything on screen. The aging divas couldn't stand one another and fought constantly. In fact, Davis "accidentally" kicked Crawford in the head, requiring stitches.

Sisters

Sisters, Brian De Palma's ode to deviant soroal behaviour may well be the Citizen Kane of the genre. On one hand we have Danielle (Margot Kidder), a French/Canadian model and one half of a set of Siamese twins. Then there's the murderously mad Dominique (also Kidder), who fools her prey into thinking she is the demure Danielle before… well, going murderously mad on them.

Chris Isaak

Television
Unless this is some sort of Wicked Game, rumour has it that the folks at American Idol are reportedly considering Chris Isaak as a replacement for Simon Cowell for the 10th season of the hugely successful singing competition, according to the Hollywood Reporter. Insiders say Isaak has already met with producers twice, though no decision has been made. They are also reportedly considering Harry Connick Jr., who has appeared as a mentor on the program. And despite his lobbying for the position in the press, Poison frontman Bret Michaels is out of the running, sources say.

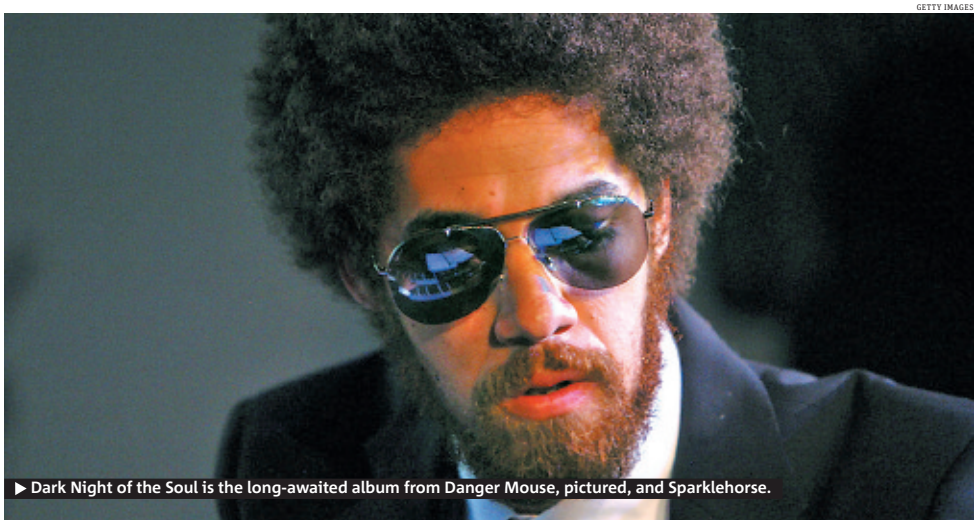
Dark Night album finally sees light of day

Long-awaited Danger Mouse project carries heavy baggage Album delayed by legal issues and suicides of Mark Linkous and Vic Chesnutt

GETTY IMAGES



Dark Night of the Soul is the long-awaited album from Danger Mouse, pictured, and Sparklehorse.

It's hard not to think of the long-awaited Dark Night of the Soul as a tragic album.

First delayed by legal wrangling, then indelibly marked by the suicides of co-creator Mark Linkous and contributor Vic Chesnutt, the album carried some heavy baggage when it finally came out last week.

Yet Brian Burton says he can separate the experience of listening to the album from the emotions he's left with since Linkous' death earlier this year. So when he hears his favourite cut, Revenge, and the way Flaming Lips frontman Wayne Coyne lays down a heartbreaking vocal, the producer who works as Danger Mouse flashes to one of his happiest moments with his close friend.

"It's just a great song," Burton said. "There's just something about it. And it makes me think of Mark a lot in a heavy kind of way, but I don't get sad about it. I just remember the two of us, when we first heard what Wayne did with it, us celebrating and everything. It was really great."

With it's dark themes and haunting beauty, the album already cast a melancholy spell. Years in the making, it was highly anticipated and marked some of the best work in the very different careers of the men created it.

Yet viewed through the prism of real-life events, the album takes on deeper meaning. Linkous, who recorded and performed as Sparklehorse, and Chesnutt were critically acclaimed singer-songwriters who were destined to get their widest exposure yet upon the release of Dark Night.

Chesnutt, who forged a heralded and unlikely career following a car crash that left him mostly paralyzed, killed himself on Christmas after years of depression that included other suicide attempts. Linkous also dealt with depression and shot himself in March. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Burton said Linkous and Chesnutt examined the depths of their depression in their music, adding the kind of layers and complexity not often expected in pop music.

SUMMER CONCERTS? FORGET ABOUT IT

As I trooped into a Rush concert last week, I ran across a sign that read "$10 TICKETS! NO SERVICE CHARGE!!! TONIGHT ONLY!!!" Sting tickets were being offered at $40 while $20 would get me in to either the Slayer/Megadeth or Disturbed/Stone Sour double bills. "It's come to that, huh?" remarked a guy next to me.

Yes, it has. With CD sales in an irreversible death spiral, performers are hoping to make up the difference in revenue from tours. But with so many acts playing so many shows at a time when the economy is sluggish, there's a glut of gigs.

It's been especially tough in the U.S. (Canada has weathered things a little better.) The landscape is littered with canceled shows (Eagles, Rihanna, Christina Aguilera, Jonas Brothers, American Idol's "Idols Live") and tours that have been postponed (U2 because of Bono's back bad, Limp Bizkit because nobody cared). Meanwhile, others — Lilith Fair has been in the news a lot — are limping along, discounting tickets and/offering enticements (Two-for-one! Free pizza!) to boost attendance.

And it's not just the economy. Fans are tired of high ticket prices, service charges (What the hell is a "convenience fee?"), overpriced VIP offerings and the nickel-and-diming that comes with the concert experience, like parking and concessions.

Fans are also frustrated by not being able to get good seats to see their favourite bands. No matter how fast they're on the phone or online when tickets sales start, they know that the best seats will somehow magically end up with resellers and scalpers. They're also confused by some of the new ticket pricing models being rolled out in some markets. Instead of the standard fixed price structure for a given show, ticket prices are being sold like airline tickets using yield management techniques. The price of any seat can fluctuate depending on demand and how close to the gig you're making the purchase. Your ticket may have been $100 but the dude next to you paid just $35.

Meanwhile, artists are visiting the same market two or more times on a given tour. How many times would you pay to see the same show?

It's not all bad. Justin Bieber, Lady Gaga and Rush have been doing all right. But the summer of 2010 is going to be one most industry people would rather forget.

Brasstronaut finds perfect balance of space and sound

- Band stripped down sound during artistic residency
- Album reflects meticulous approach to production

ROB MCMAHON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Compared to the shuffling, acoustic sound of their debut EP, Brasstronaut's new album Mt. Chimaera is an album of techno-like precision.

The album came together during a winter artistic residency at the Banff Centre, where the band spent months stripping down layers of sound. Singer and keyboard player Edo Van Breemen explained the six-member group pruned what began as dense compositions, a challenging process much different than that used on 2008's Old World Lies.

"(Mt. Chimaera) took eight months to mix ... and became a very subtractive process. We had lots more overdubs on our initial recording, and it was hard to decide what to add and what to change," explained Van Breemen.

"The album was highly produced when compared to the EP, which had a looser, more organic sound."
EDO VAN BREEMEN

The resulting album reflects this meticulous approach to production — no surprise given Van Breeman's long-term interest in German techno. A careful balancing of sound and space recalls groups like Wilco or Spoon that focus on arrangements as much as individual instruments. Listen for the drop in Slow Knots leading to a keyboard and vocal-led breakdown and a rapid percussive burst. The elements may have emerged from the band's jam space, but they sound just as inspired from the dynamics of electronic music.

"(In production, we used an) intense layering of sound — of swirling sounds and textures — and in that way, the album is a little like electronic music. We focused on adding and subtracting elements in a way that comes out like techno," said Van Breeman. "I've always liked minimal German techno. I lived in Germany, and spent a lot of time in Europe as a kid, and so I'm drawn to that music."

Striking the acting iron while it's hot

After the successful flick Away from Her, Gordon Pinsent stars in TV series The Pillars of the Earth, premiering Friday on The Movie Network

Veteran Canadian actor Gordon Pinsent says he was pleasantly surprised to be recognized by his more famous peers when he shot the upcoming eight-hour TV miniseries, The Pillars of the Earth, but laments not capitalizing on the buzz that surrounded his acclaimed 2006 film Away From Her by chasing Hollywood roles.

Pinsent, who plays the Archbishop of Canterbury in Pillars, says he missed an opportunity to take advantage of the critical success of Away From Her, which earned co-star Julie Christie a Golden Globe for best actress and writer/director Sarah Polley an Oscar nomination for best adapted screenplay.

"Good material is truly hard to find," says Pinsent, who arguably reached the pinnacle of his career with his acclaimed turn as a heartbroken husband in the Canadian indie film.

"Good material is hard to find. I haven't had anything since like that."
GORDON PINSENT

"I haven't had anything since like that."

The Newfoundland native, whose deep sonorous voice and dignified poise established him as a mainstay on Canadian stage and screen, wonders if his career would be different if he'd been more aggressive in the wake of global acclaim for the romantic drama.

"I didn't play the game very well," says Pinsent, who recently turned 80. "I should have gone down there and hung out and delivered papers or something, you know, to people. To set once and for all a reputation."

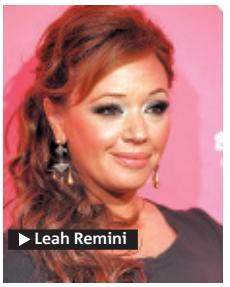
New show to replace As the World Turns



▶ Leah Remini

CBS will take a new view of daytime after the end of As the World Turns.

When the soap opera concludes its 54-year run in September, it will be replaced by an hour-long daily talk show with six celebrity co-hosts — all women, an echo of ABC's popular The View series.

CBS announced yesterday the hosts of the untitled daytime show include Sharon Obourne; Sara Gilbert of TV's Roseanne; Holly Robinson Peete from Celebrity Apprentice; Broadway actress Marissa Jaret Winokur; Leah Remini of The King of Queens; and Julie Chen, who hosts CBS' Big Brother and The Early Show.

Gilbert developed the program, which will be the network's only daytime talk show, and is its executive producer. It's set for a fall debut, but a specific date was not announced.

The show will take a moms' view of entertainment and news stories. The hosts all have children, ranging in age from infants to adults.

Chen will give up her Early Show co-anchor role but will continue to appear on the morning program, CBS News said. Chen, who is married to CBS Chief Executive Leslie Moonves, will remain as Big Brother host.

The decision to air the series was made by CBS Entertainment President Nina Tassler, CBS spokesman Chris Ender said.

When Canuck cop shows compromise

- U.S. media outlets criticize Canadian-made TV for lack of maple flavour
- Rookie Blue, Flashpoint and The Bridge called 'culturally compromised'

PHOTO HANDOUT

▶ Global's Rookie Blue is a U.S.-Canada co-production

Canadian police dramas Rookie Blue, The Bridge and Flashpoint have all been recently enjoying rare U.S. network exposure, but they've also drawn fire from a couple of American TV journalists.

The beef? They think the shows aren't quite Canadian enough.

In a column entitled Copping Out in Canada, Boston Globe columnist Alex Beam offered a critique of what he called "culturally compromised Canadian cop shows," pointing to Global's Rookie Blue and CTV's The Bridge and Flashpoint.

All three are co-productions with American networks, and Beam suggested that the series sold their Canuck souls to amass a sizable audience south of the border.

"The actors speak generic North American. Nary an 'eh?' or 'aboot' passes their lips," he notes, adding that cops work for a "big city police force"' with "no identifying uniform or cruiser markings."

Those concerns were echoed in a mostly positive review of The Bridge in the Hollywood Reporter, which largely approved of the show but wondered: "Is there a reason a new cop show can't own its Canadian-ness?"

Flashpoint executive producer Anne Marie La Traverse says such criticisms are unwarranted.

"Although it's true that our cop cars don't say Toronto Police on them, we have Canadian flags on every uniform, we have the CN Tower in every single aerial shot we use, we name the streets," she said in a phone interview.

"We shoot hugely identifiable locations: the (Royal Ontario Museum), (the Ontario Science Centre). We can't be more specific. We've been unabashedly set in Toronto since the beginning. ...I think what he's accusing us of is being anti-Canadian. I'd love to know what a Canadian show is. This is a Canadian show."

As more Canadian shows are seen by U.S. viewers, it's becoming an increasingly relevant question. Many have pinpointed the 2007 Writers Guild of America strike as the moment when U.S. networks began to look northward for content. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tapes continue to circulate online

Gibson is subjected to further ridicule as parody mash-ups, tweets and remixes hit the web

Since the celebrity website RadarOnline.com gradually released recordings purportedly of Mel Gibson, the tapes have been used for comedy fodder across the Internet, inspiring remixes, mash-ups and an endless stream of tweets.

The recordings reveal grim, ugly arguments between a man who sounds distinctly like Gibson and a woman identified by the site as his ex-girlfriend and mother of his child, Oksana Grigorieva. The anger and ethnic slurs make the tapes difficult to listen to.

Parody, though, has come easier.

"It's the gift that keeps on giving," says Justin Stangel, who, with his brother Eric, is co-head writer and executive producer of Late Show With David Letterman."

"His tapes are so crazy, there's new areas to deal with everyday. It's fantastic. They really should have saved it for sweeps," Stangel said, referring to the period when ad time is priced for TV programming.

Late night shows have put the subject in heavy rotation, none perhaps as much at CBS' Late Show.

Letterman has joked that the biggest problem of Apple's iPhone 4 is that it "only accepts calls from Mel Gibson."

Pitt & Jolie settle UK newspaper case for undisclosed damages

Couple say News of the World made false allegations

Actors Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie have accepted undisclosed damages in London's High Court to settle a privacy claim against a British tabloid that had reported they were planning to split.

The celebrity couple began legal action against the News of the World after it reported in January that they had agreed to separate.

The pair argued the newspaper had made false and intrusive allegations in saying that they had planned to divide assets worth US$320 million and had made arrangements regarding the custody of their six children.

The newspaper confirmed Thursday that a settlement had been reached, but declined to comment further. The couple did not attend the hearing.

Campbell to testify at Taylor trial

The chief prosecutor of the war crimes tribunal for Sierra Leone says Naomi Campbell will testify next month at Charles Taylor's trial.

Prosecutors want the supermodel to say whether Taylor gave her a rough, or uncut, diamond as a gift in 1997.

The court issued the order forcing Campbell to testify after she avoided prosecutors for a year and made it known she had no wish to be part of the case.

Prosecutor Brenda Hollis said Thursday that Campbell will testify on Aug. 5 instead of July 29 as previously scheduled.

THE BIGGEST AND LONGEST RUNNING REGATTA IN THE WORLD IS A WEEK AWAY — FIRST-TIME SAILOR LAURA TAIT TESTS THE WATERS IN THE SMALL, SLEEPY TOWN THAT PLAYS HOST.

LAURA TAIT
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Cowes; a small town on the north coast of the Isle of Wight steeped in history and featuring picturesque period architecture, quaint streets and small friendly cafes, bars and restaurants — population 16,000.

But step off the ferry during Cowes Week (July 31 - Aug. 7) and the population will be doubled, with parties, picnics and live music puncturing the peace and 100,000 spectators watching around 35 races per day.

Not that the locals mind. To say sailing is popular in Cowes is like saying praying is popular in Mecca.

If the boat-speckled view of the coastline isn't a big enough give-away you just need to walk down the narrow high street and note the mass of nautical themed shops to see what they're into here.

This makes it the perfect place to let go of the notion that sailing is an elitist sport and give it a try.

One of the competitions taking place in Cowes Week is round two of the UK Extreme Sailing Series. But it is on one of the Oman Sail Extreme 40s that I get a taste of racing at another event Cowes throws down its welcome mat for every year, the J.P. Morgan Asset Management Round the Island Race.

The town provides both the starting and finishing point for the competitive one-day yacht racing spectacle which stages a 50 nautical mile course around the Isle of Wight.

My sailing experience was somewhat limited but the all-encompassing nature of the event means I'm sharing the waters with the likes of Dame Ellen McArthur (world record holder for fastest solo circumnavigation of the globe, and three-times Olympic gold medalist Ben Ainsley, along with other professionals, families, amateurs and first-timers.

A massive 1,780 boats in total. And, to my immense surprise, I'm going much, much faster than most of them.

I'm on the Wave Muscat — one of four Extreme 40 boats competing in the race. They're exhilarating to watch — but not even close to how exhilarating they are to sail.

As the fifth "man" on board, my role pretty much consisted of changing my position while the four-strong crew, skippered by Paul Campbell-James, are tacking or jibing — if you're unfamiliar with the lingo (as I was), this is the trick of switching between starboard and port tack depending on the direction of the wind.

As someone with zero sailing experience this takes some getting used to. As someone who regularly falls over on dry, flat land this means I spend much of the race clinging to the trampoline flooring of the boat as I try to clamber across without falling in when Paul shouts "TACK!" while one side of the boat is out of the water.

The extremes aren't known as the grand prix of sailing for nothing and speeding over the crystal clear waters of English Solent in the early morning sun — we set off at 5.15 a.m. — it's hard to believe the only power behind this thing is the wind.

Finishing second over the line after just a little over four and a half hours, just three minutes after multihull vessel IDEC, we make it back ashore in time for breakfast whilst many boats on the water are hoping to make it back by dinner time.

Get a taste of South Asian fare right in T.O.

Festival brings best of India's street food to newcomers and veterans Annual event in its 10th year

It isn't necessary to travel to India to sample the country's famous street food.

The annual festival Masala! Mehindi! Masti! taking place in Toronto this weekend celebrates South Asian culture and will include a mosaic of spicy variety in Indian street food.

One vendor, Hubert D'mello, a native of Mumbai, owns Udupi Palace, a vegetarian restaurant in the city's Gerrard Street area, home to about 50 South Asian restaurants.

"Street food is like a tasting table. If you haven't tried some South Asian foods before, tasting is the best thing to do.""
HUBERT D'MELLO

Deep-fried samosas, those triangular pastries filled with spiced potatoes, are always hugely popular as snacks, he says.

Chaat, another favourite of street vendors, is made of an assortment of crisp, salted small pancakes sprinkled with various masala powders along with different chutneys and yogurt.

Although most of the free festival, now in its 10th year, features South Asian music, art and dance at Toronto's Exhibition Place, many vendors representing some of Toronto's South Asian restaurants and caterers will be located outside in colourful tents.

D'mello says another version of street food he will be offering visitors is misal pav — a mixture of white pea, cooked with onion and tomato and garnished with crisp chickpea noodles, tamarind sauce and mint chutney with a dinner roll.

He is also serving a mixture of potatoes, beets, raw banana and pomegranate cooked and stuffed in a bun called dabeli.

"Street food is like a tasting table," he says. "If you haven't tried some South Asian foods before, tasting is the best thing to do."

The festival will feature such South Asian talents as actor and model Lisa Ray, who starred in the movie Cooking With Stella, Toronto resident and director Deepa Mehta, whose films have garnered worldwide acclaim, and Shiamak Davar, Indian choreographer with dance schools in Canada.

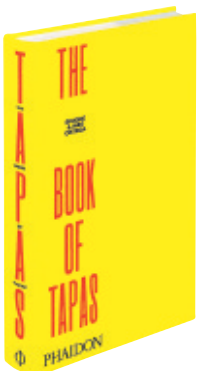
Try creating the taste of tapas at home

Spain's delightful tradition of tapas has crossed the ocean and found a home in North America.

Simply put, tapas are hot or cold appetizers served in bars and restaurants with a glass of wine. And now home cooks can make them too with the release of a new cookbook devoted to the tasty morsels.

"You can spend an entire day languishing and enjoying tapas with beer or wine with friends and family," says Alex Raij, who with her husband Eder Montero is co-owner of two New York restaurants where tapas are served.

Txikito is their Basque restaurant serving cuisine of the Spanish region. Right across the street is El Quinto Pino, a 24-seat bar featuring signature multi-regional Spanish tapas.



Raij, a native of Argentina, and Montero, who is from Spain, contributed recipes to The Book of Tapas by Simone and Ines Ortega (Phaidon, $45, hardcover).

As spokesperson for the publication, which boasts more than 250 recipes and 150 illustrations, Raij is considered one of the foremost tapas chefs on the continent.

"We are very inspired by the regional cuisine of Spain and so many classic dishes are reflected in the tapas we create," she says. "That is what I love about tapas bars because they can make the creators think outside the box."

The book features authentic recipes for famous dishes like gambas al ajillo (garlic shrimp) and patatas bravas (potatoes with spicy sauce).

Spanish ingredients used to make the small bites include Serrano ham, salt cod, chorizo sausage, octopus as well as a selection of vegetables. The list is endless.

"A tapa can pack a lot of flavour," says Raij.

"How the chef combines the ingredients like a pepper, a piece of cheese with ham and the way it is stacked toasted or untoasted will completely change how that little bite tastes in your mouth," says Raij.

One of her favourites is croquettes, which can hold anything from salt cod to ham, potatoes, other vegetables or salmon. These are mixed with a thick white sauce and seasonings and formed into small cylinders, ovals or rounds. They are dipped in beaten egg and then breadcrumbs and deep-fried until crisp and brown.

"I don't think you can have a tapas restaurant without croquettes," says Raij.

Tapas bars don't play by the same rules as traditional restaurants do, she says.

"It's not a formula thing. You can eat a bit of cheese at the beginning or at the end. You can construct a meal or you can have a small snack with a glass of wine. You could spend $100 or $9." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chorizo Cooked In Wine

Here from the book is a very simple tapas recipe to try at home.

- 1 l. (4 cups) dry red or white wine

1. Slice chorizo into 2-cm (3/4-inch) slices. Heat a heavy pan and add chorizo.

3. Serve hot, spearing each slice with a cocktail stick (toothpick).

Ingredients :

- 175 ml (3/4 cup) walnut pieces
- 60 ml (4 tbsp) olive oil, divided
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) each sea salt and fresh cracked pepper
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) white balsamic vinegar
- 500 ml (2 cups) chopped cherry tomatoes
- 75 ml (1/3 cup) pitted and sliced kalamata olives
- 1 green onion, sliced
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 shallot, minced
- 6 fresh basil leaves, thinly sliced
- 1/2 loaf of leftover day or week-old crusty bread, torn or cut into 2.5-cm (1-inch) cubes (1 to 1.25 l/4 to 5 cups)
- Tip: If white balsamic vinegar is not available, substitute regular balsamic vinegar.

Preparation:

1. In a small bowl, combine walnuts with 15 ml (1 tbsp) of the olive oil. Heat a small frying pan over medium heat. Add oil-coated walnuts, stirring constantly until golden brown, 3 to 5 minutes. Remove from heat, season with salt and pepper and let cool.
2. In a large bowl, combine remaining olive oil, vinegar, tomatoes, olives, onion, garlic, shallot and basil. Mix well and let sit for 5 minutes to develop full flavour.
3. Add bread and walnuts to salad mixture and toss until well combined.
4. Serve immediately.

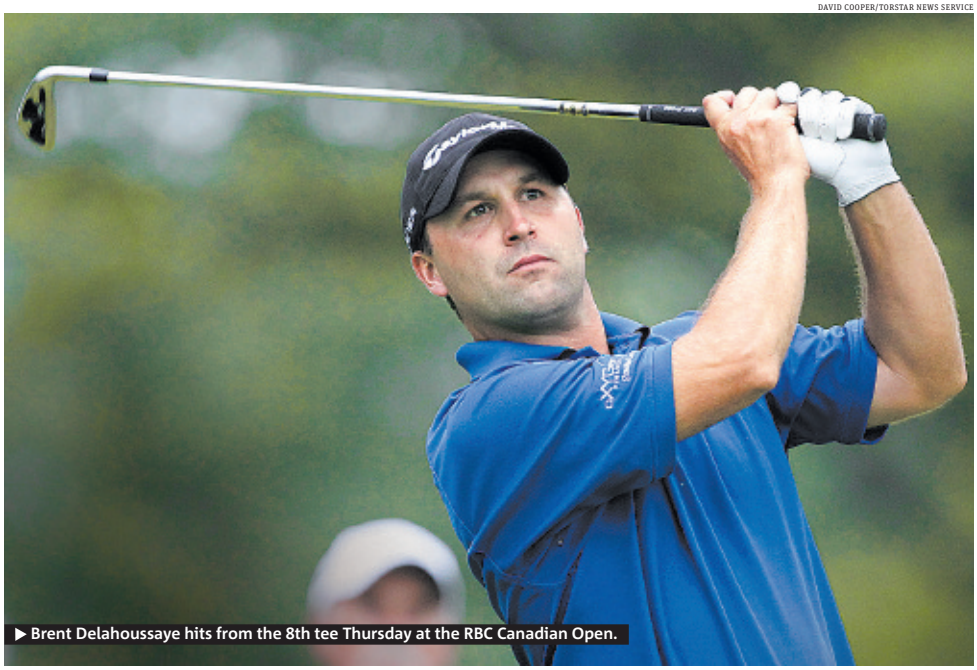
New low for St. George's

American golfer Brent Delahoussaye shoots a 62 for course's best ever competitive round ◆ Score also ties lowest for a round at Canadian Open

DAVID COOPER/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE



▶ Brent Delahoussaye hits from the 8th tee Thursday at the RBC Canadian Open.

The players figured their long-awaited return to St. George's Golf and Country Club would be a painful experience. And then the RBC Canadian Open started.

Unheralded American Brent Delahoussaye led the charge on a birdie-filled Thursday, shooting a record-setting 62 to grab a two-shot lead over Vance Veazey and Brock Mackenzie.

Some predicted 8 under would be good enough to win the tournament on a tree-lined course with thick rough and undulating greens. It ended up being the number beside the name of the first-round leader.

Number of players who finished at par or better on the first day of the Canadian Open.

"To be honest, I woke up this morning and looked at the scores and I was like, 'Wow, I did not see that many low scores out there in the practice round,'" said Delahoussaye. "I am shocked. I mean, I knew I was playing well, and I didn't even really know how many under I was at one point.

"So I just kind of kept going and kept trying to make birdies."

Delahoussaye equalled the best score ever shot at golf's third oldest national championship and set a new competitive course record at St. George's.

The 28-year-old is a tour rookie whose only professional victory came at the 2006 Hooters Tour Classic. He has made just three cuts and less than $30,000 US so far in 2010.

"I haven't played well this year," said Delahoussaye. "It's my first year out and I've been trying too hard like everyone says not to do. It just hasn't clicked. I've been getting in my own way. ...

"This course doesn't set up good for me so I (decided) to go out there with a good attitude and not worry about it. Look where I am now."

Ames, Mills are leading Canadians

It seems time away from the golf course has done Stephen Ames some good.

The Calgary resident fired a 3-under 67 to tie Oshawa native Jon Mills as the low Canadian Thursday at the $5.1-million US RBC Canadian Open.

The pair sit tied for 24th and are chasing little-known Brent Delahoussaye, who opened with a course-record 8-under 62 at St. George's Golf and Country Club.

Ames, who hasn't played competitively since missing the cut at the U.S. Open in June, said the break paid some early dividends.

"I'm happy with the way things have started," said Ames, who fired a bogey-free round. "I wasn't comfortable with certain things. I think that was my goal ... to try and get as comfortable as I could over the golf ball before I actually pulled the trigger, and I think I accomplished my goal."

Mike Weir of Bright's Grove, Ont., struggled to a 2-over 72. Weir, who pulled out of Wednesday's pro-am with tendinitis in his right arm, refused to blame his play on the injury.

"I don't want to use an excuse like that. Just didn't play well," said Weir.

Canadian Hesjedal climbs to eighth

Victoria cyclist winning respect at Tour de France Best ever finish for a Canadian was fourth in 1988

Canadian Ryder Hesjedal has already won new admirers and a new contract at this year's Tour de France.

Now he's looking to finish it off in style.

The 29-year-old from Victoria was an impressive fourth in Thursday's stage on the historic Col du Tourmalet climb in the Pyrenees, bumping him up two places to eighth overall.

This year's race marks the 100th anniversary of the first stage in the Pyrenees and Hesjedal's gritty performance through mist and rain further confirmed his place among the sport's current elite.

"A lot of history," he said of Thursday's climb, adding about his ride up it: "I think it will set in more once we finish in Paris."

There are three stages left before the race ends Sunday in Paris, but only one that may impact the standings — Saturday's 52-kilometre time trial.

"That just comes down to what kind of form you have and I think I've shown my form is very good, if not the best it's been in the whole race — in the third week," the Garmin-Transitions rider told The Canadian Press.

CHRISTOPHE ENA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Ryder Hesjedal

"We have the top equipment, top technology on this team. So I'm nothing but excited for the time trial. I'm definitely not thinking about moving backwards. I'm only looking forward.

"After Saturday it should just be a nice ride into Paris."

Steve Bauer holds Canada's best overall showing at the Tour, a fourth-place finish in 1988.

After more than 83 hours and 17 stages in the saddle, Hesjedal is nine minutes 18 seconds behind leader Alberto Contador of Spain.

Joaquin Rodriguez Oliver of Spain is seventh, 2:15 ahead of Hesjedal. Dutch rider Robert Gesink is sixth, 2:37 ahead of the Canadian.

"Seventh and sixth aren't known as extraordinary time trialers so a lot can happen in 52K. I'm just going to keep approaching the race (the same way) I have the whole time," Hesjedal said. "If I can move up again on the TT (time trial), it'll be even more sweeter.

"But the ride today, what I was able to do and where I am right now, I mean it doesn't get much better."

Hesjedal had to combat more than a lung-busting climb and bad weather Thursday. There were overexuberant spectators and even sheep crossing the road.

"That was pretty funny," the lanky Canadian said.

"Nothing surprises me in the Tour de France. We cover so much distance, so much terrain, it was not that surprising we had to slow down and let some sheep through.

"We see it all on this race."

Toronto's Michael Barry, a support rider for Team Sky and its British star Bradley Wiggins, stands 99th overall.

Spain's Carlos Sastre, at 21st, leads the Canadian-owned Cervelo team.

Contador tightens grip on top spot

TOUR DE FRANCE. Defending champion Alberto Contador of Spain virtually secured a third Tour de France title Thursday after staying with yellow-jersey rival Andy Schleck all the way to the top of the legendary Col du Tourmalet in the pivotal 17th stage.

Contador appeared completely at ease as he followed Schleck up the final climb, even moving in front of his rival at one point.

He didn't seem to worry too much about trying to cross the line first.

Contador retained his eight-second lead in the overall standings and looks destined to ride into Paris Sunday for the ceremonial final stage as the winner.

MARITIME FIELD OF DREAMS

If you build it they will come.

New Brunswick's shining new state-of-the-art track and field facility is a revelation to a city, a region and, for that matter, all of Canadian sport. The Moncton 2010 Stadium is hosting the IAAF World Junior Track and Field Championships and proving the future belongs to those who believe in themselves.

There has been little bickering about the building of this track in this unlikely place and not much quibbling about the investment of $20 million in young Canadians. It's a different story than that which exists in some of the country's more populous locales.

This is all about a desire to be a part of the action and to ensure this place and these people have the same opportunities as the rest of the country. It's working.

Thousands have come to see the world's best track and field gods and goddesses, 19 years of age and younger. The future stars have responded in kind. Terrific performances have been turned in by Jamaican sprint savant Dexter Lee and his female counterpart, 16-year-old Jodie Williams of Britain.

"This is all about a desire to be a part of the action and to ensure that this place and these people have the same opportunities as the rest of the country."

A Canadian long jumper, Tyler Stewart of London, Ont., has produced a bronze medal, Canada's first at this level since the 2006 championships in Beijing. With a brilliant smile, Stewart hit the perfect chord in his post-race interview.

"It's just an honour to compete in Moncton and in Canada," Stewart beamed. "This is the best place to win a medal — at home."

Note that Stewart said at home. The opportunity that Moncton is offering to Canadian athletes has been working magic in other countries for centuries. It's the chance to flourish in your own backyard.

Decathlete Jared Heldman of Langley, B.C., scored 10 out of 10 personal bests in the biggest competition of his life.

"I learned I love the decathlon," Heldman said when it was over. "Now I want to win a gold medal at the Pan American Games."

Lamine Diack, the president of the IAAF, subscribes to what's happening here.

"Our task is to find and develop stars in every country," he said. "They will not just fall from the moon."

No they won't.

They'll grow and prosper in a Maritime field of dreams.

Argos' Belli having fun with historic matchup

Adriano Belli won't be able to rely on Toronto owner David Braley's influence to help secure the Argonauts a home win over the B.C. Lions.

The Argos and Lions will meet at Rogers Centre Friday night in a historic CFL contest. Braley owns both franchises and this will mark the first time in league history two teams with the same owner will meet.

Toronto (2-1) enters the contest chasing a third straight win. The always colourful Belli suggested he tried unsuccessfully to sway Braley by offering the Hamilton businessman a bribe.

"I spoke with Mr. Braley after our last game (a 27-24 home win over Calgary July 14) and tried to slip him a couple of hundred bucks to see if he could fix this game," Belli said Thursday, tongue firmly in cheek. "But he wanted nothing to do with it.

"He passed up a couple of hundred bucks. I'm disappointed."

Teammate Rob Murphy could only chuckle when told of how much Belli was offering Braley — who is a millionaire with numerous business ventures other than his CFL teams.

"I wouldn't be surprised," said the hulking offensive tackle, who spent three years in B.C. before signing with Toronto last season. "But that's not good enough."

Toronto needs just one more win to equal last year's total.

Hornets star Paul requests trade: Source

Team schedules meeting with guard

Chris Paul has requested to be traded and the New Orleans Hornets have scheduled a meeting with the star guard Monday, according to a person familiar with the situation.

Paul will sit down with new head coach Monty Williams, new general manager Dell Demps and team president Hugh Weber in New Orleans, the person told The Associated Press Thursday. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the team had not made plans to meet with Paul public, and because Paul has not publicly demanded a trade.

The person also said Paul, through his representatives, has told the Hornets he would prefer to be dealt to one of only a handful of teams, including the New York Knicks and Orlando Magic.

Paul, 25, cannot opt out of his contract for two years. However, he said at a recent charity golf tournament that he will be unhappy playing for the Hornets if they fail to demonstrate a commitment to winning immediately.

The only free agency move the Hornets have made this off-season so far is re-signing reserve centre Aaron Gray.

The Hornets also have made it clear they have no intention of trading Paul.

Weber said earlier this month, while attending a community service event with Paul, that there was "no question" Paul would be in a Hornets uniform when next season opened. As recently as Tuesday, Weber also said that an exchange of text messages gave him the impression that Paul approved of the recent hirings of Williams and Demps.

After the Hornets came within one game of advancing to the 2008 Western Conference finals, Paul agreed to a four-year, $68-million US extension that went into effect last season and includes a player's option for the fourth year.

Since then, however, the Hornets have traded centre Tyson Chandler and fired coach Byron Scott, who both were close with Paul.

Un-Mauer like year for reigning MVP

Everything has always seemed to come so easy for Joe Mauer on the baseball diamond.

That smooth left-handed swing brought him three AL batting titles in his first five full major league seasons.

The big arm that made him a top quarterback recruit in high school helped him win Gold Gloves the last two years.

Yet, after his biggest season so far — a .365, 28-homer, 96-RBI campaign that earned him the AL MVP and an eight-year, $184-million US contract extension — the Minnesota Twins' all-star is having a very un-Mauer like season.

"I come to work every day. I'm working hard trying to turn it around."
JOE MAUER

He entered Thursday night's game at Baltimore hitting .297 with just four homers and 41 RBIs and drew perhaps the harshest criticism of his career for laying down a bunt during a loss this week to the Cleveland Indians.

"I come to work every day. I'm working hard trying to turn it around," Mauer said.

"It's not just going to come to you. You've got to put in the work."

Most catchers would be delighted to be hitting .297 this deep into the season.

Most catchers, however, are not Mauer.

Whether it's a shoulder that has been sore for most of the season, pitcher-friendly Target Field or the weight of expectations generated from the huge extension he signed before this season, something seems to be holding him back.

Despite hitting third, a slot in the lineup that is designed to increase run-producing opportunities, Mauer has just one more RBI than leadoff man Denard Span.

A case of wasted opportunities

Jays strand plenty of baserunners in loss to Tigers

2	5
BLUE JAYS	TIGERS

There is a simple scouting report on Detroit Tigers ace Justin Verlander.

Get to him early.

That's why, even though the Toronto Blue Jays led 2-0 after the second inning Thursday, manager Cito Gaston knew his team probably hadn't done enough.

Toronto left the bases loaded in the first and, after John Buck's two-run homer in the second, couldn't get a runner home from third later in the inning. Sure enough, Verlander didn't allow another run as the Tigers rallied for a 5-2 victory.

"We had more opportunities than we took in the first couple innings, that's for sure," Gaston said. "It's good to get two runs off the guy, but you don't want to miss chances against one of the premier pitchers in the game."

After giving up two runs on four hits and two walks in the first two innings, Verlander (12-5) only allowed four baserunners in his last six shutout innings.

Ricky Romero (7-7) took the loss, giving up three runs on seven hits in seven-plus innings.

Johnny Damon started the eighth inning with a walk, bringing Shawn Camp out of the Toronto bullpen to replace Romero. Magglio Ordonez singled, moving Damon to second, and Miguel Cabrera followed with his third hit — a tie-breaking double into the left-centre field gap.

Moves

- The Jays recalled infielder Mike McCoy from triple-A Las Vegas prior to Thursday's game against the Detroit Tigers.
- To make room for McCoy, Toronto optioned pitcher Marc Rzepczynski to Las Vegas.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 19 You may have been a bit too generous of late and need to rein in your more extravagant tendencies, at least for a while. Will those who benefited from your largesse help you in your hour of need? Don't count on it.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 21 Feelings of self-doubt are perfectly natural, but don't let them get out of hand. The current negative phase will pass quickly and come the weekend you will be on top of the world again.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If there is a secret you don't want the world to know about you will have a hard time keeping it under wraps today. Maybe you should own up to it.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Today it might be an idea not to take too much for granted. Work plans could be subject to sudden disruptions, especially if you have trusted others to take care of the details.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Tread carefully and don't agree to anything that you are not entirely certain is safe and secure. That applies to financial matters, of course, but also to affairs of the heart.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 You may feel helpless and believe that you are no longer in control of your fate but it isn't true. Whatever caused this feeling it is unlikely to last more than a few hours, so cheer up.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Don't let anyone talk you into taking on extra work today. You have more than enough to be getting on with as it is and any more will put you under intolerable pressure.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 You cannot possibly keep up the pace you have been moving at these past few weeks. Your mind and your body will send you warnings that you must not ignore. Slow down.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Try to see everything that happens today and over the weekend from a wider and higher perspective. Little things may be annoying but don't sweat the small stuff.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 If there is something you need the world to know about, speak up right away. If you leave it even a few hours longer you will lose your nerve and the opportunity will pass.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Indulge yourself today if you must but don't think that you can go on spending time and money as if they will never run out. Every so often you need to rein in your enthusiasm.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Don't worry that if you don't take a risk you might miss out — worry that if you do take a risk you might make a major loss. This is not a time to be reckless.
